MAKING ROOM FOR THE NEW LIBRARY

Construction officially began on the new addition and remodel to the Camas Public Library yesterday with the demolition of the "Pebble House" located at the corner of Northeast Fourth Avenue and Northeast Everett Street. The house, built in the 1930s by Claude Knapp for Camas Mayor James Duvall, included a façade encrusted with tiny glass, colored pebbles. It was destroyed to make room for library construction and could not be moved due to the unsturdy materials that were used to build the original structure.
